All University of California, Berkeley students must establish a berkeley.edu e-mail address. Students are responsible for keeping the address current and for regularly monitoring their e-mail for official communications from the University.

• Students

• Office of Undergraduate Admissions
• Office of the Registrar
• Graduate Division
• Information Systems and Technology
Why We Have This Policy

E-mail has become a standard means for sending official University communications. A berkeley.edu e-mail address for each student benefits the campus in the following ways:

- It establishes a consistent, unified approach for official campus communications.
- There are few, if any, returned messages.
- It ensures that messages sent from campus departments are not rejected as “spam,” which can sometimes occur with campus messages sent to third-party e-mail services.
- Students always know where to check for official notifications from the University.
- With minimal effort, the e-mail accounts can be kept valid and current.

Responsibilities

Office of Undergraduate Admissions:

- Provides information to newly-admitted undergraduate students about establishing berkeley.edu e-mail addresses.

Graduate Division:

Office of the Registrar:

Information Systems and Technology:

- Provides a means by which students can establish a berkeley.edu address, formally record it, indicate their choice regarding release of the address to the public, and update the address as needed.

Students:

- Establish, formally record, and maintain an e-mail address in the berkeley.edu domain.
- Regularly monitor e-mail received at their Berkeley.edu email address for official notifications from the University.
Procedures

Students may create a berkeley.edu e-mail account using CalMail or, if available, their college, school, or department e-mail server in the berkeley.edu domain. To create an e-mail account on CalMail, students may go to the Berkeley Internet Link at https://calmail.berkeley.edu:10100/. When updating an e-mail address, students must go to CalNet Directory Services at https://directory.berkeley.edu/update.

In protecting students’ privacy, e-mail addresses will be made available as directory information only when the release flag is checked.
